Candace Emberly

Biography

A long time ago in Fairyland, a mischievous young fairy named Candace Emberly had found a very clever trick to make things look pretty. But what was it, and how did it work?

- At Tooth Fairy boarding school, Candace had forgotten to clean her room, again. But at inspection time, the room glowed with such cozy warmth from a string of small lights, that the Housemistress didn't notice the mess.

- Candace tried to cook dinner for a friend one evening. Unfortunately, she had cut the veggies all unevenly, and the beetroot's juice had turned everything purple! But when served by candlelight, the dinner looked, and tasted, exquisite.

Have you ever wondered how "fairy lights" got their name? And have you noticed how fairy- and candlelight always add a touch of magic?

Whether we have a tricky task, or a scary-looking room at night, Candace knows that by shining a candle - real or imaginary - we can see things differently. As a Tooth Fairy, she shares her Candlelight Brilliance with children, giving them the power to shine their own brightening.

Goldenglow Manor

All About Goldenglow Manor

When Candace moved to her home, Goldenglow Manor, on Candle Lake, the other fairies were quite surprised. "Are you sure you want to live here?" they asked. "The water is a little murky, the rocky shore is dull, and the trees around the lake are blocking out the sunlight!"

It's true, the lake didn't look appealing during the daytime. But Candace invited her friends to return at night. They were worried it might look creepy in the dark, but they came anyway, and got their second surprise of the day. The lake, and Goldenglow Manor, were now beautiful! LED candles (much safer than real ones) flickered inside the house and out, and cast glimmering, golden reflections on the water. The fairies had never experienced such inviting, cozy surroundings. It was all so enchantingly pretty, they didn't even notice that their dinner was bright blue.

"Looking at things in a different light" can also mean "thinking about things differently". If you think about the lake during the day, it doesn't seem nice, but picturing it at night, you might see it differently. We can also shine an imaginary candle on bad situations, and see them in a new, nicer way.

Official Tooth Fairy Letter

Dear

Congratulations on losing your tooth! I am your Tooth Fairy, Candace Emberly, but you can call me Flicker.

Now that your grown-up teeth are coming in, you're becoming older and wiser! Growing up will mean lots of fun, but it sometimes also means doing things we'd rather not do.

Here's a secret: when something seems really difficult (or dull, or even frightening), we can look at it in a different light. Don't think about it as 'difficult' - it's 'something you'll find easier with more practice'. Perhaps think about, or ask, what a friend who is good at it would do.

To help you shine a brightening light on challenges, I've blessed you with my 'Candlelight Brilliance' magic. Now there's a magical glow within you, ready whenever you need it.

Although we shouldn't play with candles, they can make a space look pretty. In the same way, you can use your inner candlelight to make unappealing situations seem nice - or at least, not so bad after all!

With love and light,

Candace Emberly
